HENRY STUART, } Administrators.
LEWIS REEVE, }

N. B. It is above nine months since the deceased Francis Stuart advertised his having declined business in Beaufort, and his desire of closing his affairs there; at the same time requesting those indebted to him to settle their accompts with him; such as paid no regard to that advertisement, need not be surprised if they find themselves under the necessity of settling with an attorney at law, should they prove equally regardless of this, as it would be unreasonable for them to expect the same indulgence from administrators that they possibly might have had from the deceased, when alive.

Constantinople, August 16.

THE violent earthquake which happened here the 5th instant, was succeeded the same evening at half past eight and at ten o'clock, by two other shocks, but no damage was done by them. Since that time there has not been a day without some agitation of the earth, more or less. The shock on the 5th inst. was probably stronger and more sensibly felt along the Propontis, and in the interior parts of the country. According to the accounts of travellers, Scilivrie, Rodosto, Galipoli, and all the intermediate towns and villages are in a deplorable condition; all the stone buildings, and even the ovens where they bake their bread, being destroyed or greatly damaged. They write from Adrianople, that the shock threw down seven Minarets at that place; that several Mosques were destroyed, and the walls of the town, and a great number of publick baths were much damaged. When the courier left that place, the inhabitants were in the greatest consternation, and all the people of property were encamped in gardens. It is assured that the town of Brussa, in Bythynia, has also received some damage, and that the Earthquake was felt as far as Aidin.

LONDON, September 20.

In the ship Peter, Capt. Christopher Smith, from New-York, arrived lately one Mrs. Wilson, aged upwards of 104 years. She was remarkably cheerful and hearty on the voyage, excepting for a few days that she had a slight fever. Having no surgeon on board, the mate of the ship blooded her, and she got quite well again. She has her memory perfect, and diverted the captain and passengers with old stories, and her own history. She is a native of Northumberland, where she was married, had three children at one birth, who were all married in one day by one person, are all now alive in that county with upwards of twenty children. Her husband, being in the army, was ordered to North America, where she went with him. When he died, she fixed her residence at New-York, where she supported herself for fifty one years by letting lodgings. She prized the climate so much, that she has bespoke a passage out with the same captain next spring, being extremely thankful to him and his mate for their care of her on the voyage, and during her indisposition. She assures him of a good passage when she is on board, having been always lucky. Her errand to England was to see her children and grand children, and to save time went out of the Peter in the river, and went up the side of a large light collier, without any person assisting her.

It is thought that the English and Scotch gentleman now in Corsica, have taken a trip thither induced as much through business as curiosity. The value of that island is not generally known; but it is thought that it will not remain long before the usefulness of its ports, product of the country, and its situation, will stimulate our government to annex it if they can, to the crown of England.

Bristol, Sept. 27. Thursday fortnight a large mob of poor people, consisting of near 1000, went to North Bradley mill, and pulled down part of it; broke all the windows of the house and mill, and shared what corn they found. From whence they set out for Beckington mill, near Frome, and at the turnpike were met by Thomas Prowse, Esq; member for the county of Somerset, and several other gentlemen. Mr. Prowse laid before them the dangerous consequence of such proceedings, desiring them to disperse, and assured them of his best endeavours for their relief.—To this they replied, they had not eat a morsel of bread for three days, but had subsisted on grains, &c. and that their wives and families were in the same miserable condition. They then resolutely proceeded forward to the mill. The miller, having assistance and fire arms, discharged them among the mob. On this a battle ensued, in which many of the rioters were wounded; one is since dead; and it is said, others cannot recover. Their ammunition being expended, the mob set fire to a faggot pile, a mow of hay of 12 tons, a stable, the dwelling house and mill. The people within narrowly escaped their fury. They took all the miller's wheat and flour they could find, wheeled his waggon into a fire they had prepared in the field, and then marched off. By the immediate assistance of the neighbours, after their departure, the stable, mill, and waggon, were preserved, but the rest were entirely destroyed.

Extract of a letter from Oxford, Sept. 28.

"For these five days past constantly the mob have risen and thwarted the streets of this city in a tumultuous manner, on account of the high price of corn and other provisions. It consists of a miserable and meagre crew of men, women and children, that were never observed to have any existence before, who issue from holes and recesses, and, like a swarm of locusts, seem to threaten devastation to whatever is eatable, without a proof, yet of thieving by the repast. They are headed by a set of desperate fellows, who enter mills and houses, and seizing upon flour, corn, butcher's meat, bacon and cheese, expose them to sale at an under price, returning the money to the owners. This happening in our race week, many gentlemen could not avoid being spectators of the event, who, at the same time that they commiserate the real distress of the poor, wish to see public order and economy restored. The magistrates too seem in great perplexity, who, with the fairest assurances of relief as well as threats to the delinquents, endeavour to pacify and disperse the mad rabble. Parties of them have also issued out into several roads leading to this market, intercepted the provisions bringing hither, and sold it to the next poor people. Fresh accounts of the like disturbances are brought in hourly from Abingdon, Woodstock, and Witney; and there never was a time in which there appeared more occasion for some vigorous and prudent methods, both to repress these excesses, and remedy their causes."

CHARLES-TOWN, December 22, 1766.

FRIDAY last the general assembly of this province adjourned to tuesday the 19th day of january next. ——During their sitting they passed "an ORDINANCE, for appointing "BENJAMIN SIMONS, Esq; com- "missary-general for this province," which was assented to by his excellency the governor on the 11th instant:——They have voted £. 100 sterling, at the disposal of his excellency, towards encouraging Mr. Hammerer's scheme for civilizing and educating the Cherokee Indians:—They have also voted for the brick barracks to be repaired, the arsenal to be rough cast, and the pillars of the wall to be plaisterad, and capitals put on them:—And they have sent home a petition, to be presented to his majesty, praying for the repeal of that act of the british parliament, which restrains the emission of paper currency in America, and that they may have leave to issue to the amount of £. 50,000 sterling, late an which will not be sufficient as a medium of trade.

The same evening, an express came to town, from Beaufort, Port-Royal, with an account, that on wednesday night died there, very much lamented, THOMAS MIDDLETON, Esq; who was colonel of the provincial regiment on the expedition against the Cherokee Indians, in the year 1761, under col. Grant, and afterwards, when he entered into trade again, had much at heart the better settlement and improvement of the town of Beaufort, to which, as well as the province (on account of his public spirit) his death is an irreparable loss.

Tuesday last died, greatly lamented, aged 73 years, Mrs. Elizabeth Hunt, a native of this province, and practising midwife.—It is said to appear, by an account regularly kept by her, that she had been present at the birth of near 4000 children. She was remarkably strong and healthy, till within a few months before her death, and, had she taken common care of her constitution, promised very fair to have lived beyond a century.

Several robberies have been committed, and others attempted, these two nights past; so that it will behove people to be particularly on their guard against thieves, at this time.
